INTRODUCTION.

DEAR FRIENDS AND RELATIVES:—

JUSTICE to myself and others has induced me to present this work in its unfinished state. The compilation has occupied a period of six years of labor, carried on through discouraging words from some, and with little, or long-delayed, aid from others. Surnames originated about 1500 A.D., and middle names were not universally used much previous to 1780. Men were named from their father, or from some peculiarity of person. If a man named John had a son Peter, he would be called Peter Johnson, his son would bear the name of Peterson. If he was deformed in any way, the name indicating his deformity would be used as a middle name, as Peter Hunchback Johnson. Our name is an ancient one, having originated in England. It may have been derived from Burler, a dresser of cloth, Burly, boisterous, or compounded from Bur, Burgh, elevated, and ley, meaning untilled ground; viz.: high and untilled ground. Burgh also means a fortification, a castle, and ley, leigh, means a field, viz.: a castle on the field, or defence of the lowly. The variations in spelling the name have been Burleigh, Borleigh, Burghly, Burghley, Birgeley, Burley, Berley, Birley, Burlie, Burle, Burly, Bourle, Burly, Budley, Burdley, Berdley, Birdley, Birdly, Bodley, Borley, Barley, Burles, Beareley, Brally, Bralley, Bowley, Burhely, and perhaps Burleson and Burlison. Burleigh is the more modern, and I would suggest that it be continued, though Burley is the most common orthography in England to-day.

Camden, the genealogist, says no man whomsoever is to be disliked in respect either of original, or of signification, for neither the good names do grace the bad, neither do evil names disgrace the good. In all countries, both good and bad have been of the same surnames, which, as they participate one with the other in glory, so sometimes in shame. Time has intermingled and confused all, and we are all come to this present by successive variable descents from the high and low, or more plainly, the low are descended from the high, and contrawise the high from the low. The effect of a great ancestry may be traced into the remotest generation. Statesmen, generals, intellectual men altogether, are found to have ancestors like them near, or far; and the more perfect the mating of these with the daughters, the more perfect will be the race. In fact, everything we possess is inherited from the past, and the study of the past is necessary if we would prepare for the future. Its lessons can never be neglected without exposing us to danger in the future. Wherever the memory of good deeds is perpetuated it has a tendency to produce good men. I have decided to limit my endeavor to the American portion of the family, claiming nothing as original, and hoping that those who see mistakes will not hesitate to make corrections. For if time and circumstances permit it, I shall undertake the revision of the work, and include the English families. Those who have written, or attempted to write, genealogies, know what uphill work it is. Dry statements are sent in by contributors, unenlivened from their monotony of dead figures referring to births, marriages, and deaths, by a single anecdote or historical sketch of any peculiarity in any portion of the family, which might lead to its fuller recognition by others. Many persons are frightened by the name genealogy, supposing from hearsay that it must be fruitless and uninteresting. Those who have studied it know its value. May this one be an incentive to a renewed activity among others of the family to "gather them in" even from the ends of the world, and complete a work which will make our name live for generations to come. May our children, and our children's children, adhere to the virtues of their ancestors, and each see that the world is no worse for their having lived in it. If, as the result of my labor, any are led to feel a deeper interest in the work, I shall be amply repaid. I am under special obligations to Hon. John Wentworth, of Chicago, for material relating to the Sandwich families; to Rev. J. Chapman, of Exeter, for valuable assistance. For the material of the Sanbornton families, I am indebted to Rev. M. T. Runnals for the kindly loan of his advance sheets of the history of that town, which he is soon to publish. Hoping my efforts have not been in vain, with charity for all and malice toward none, I dedicate this work to the coming generation.

CHARLES BURLEIGH.

EXPLANATIONS.

The small numbers following the name denote the generation, other numbers following denote the consecutive number of a person, which may be found by referring back. In the female lines the numbering and style of type will show the descent, thus: bold-face, parents; SMALL CAPITALS, children; italic, grand-children. Abt. means about; b., born; bapt., baptized; ch., children; d., died; m., married; n.m., not married; prob., probably or probate. No further explanations are needed, as the other abbreviations will be readily understood.

+2 Andrew,<sup>2</sup> b. Ipswich, 5 Sept. 1657, d. 1 Feb. 1718, m. 14 Mar. 1681 Mary granddaughter of Roger Conant. After his father's death he was bound out to John Brown, as would appear by a deposition of his taken 4 Apr. 1697, when 21 years of age, at the proving of the will of Brown. He sayth that when he lived with old Goodman Brown, he often times heard him speak concerning what he should give his children. He was called a husbandman and yeoman, and bore the title of "Cornet." 6 Jan. 1678, Rebeca fitt gave her son Andrew Birdley all her right in the estate which her husband Giles Birdley gave to her. 20 Mar. 1687, I Andrew Burley request to grant me the liberty of making a kill of bricks a Jefferies Neck, I cutting there no wood down that is growing to burn them but what I shall prepare otherwise, taking such drift wood as may be found by the water side, because it will be near to my land by Jeffries Neck Caseway, where I purpose to build an house for to dwell there. In 1698 Andrew Burdley was a subscriber for a "bigger bell." His signature in 1698 is spelled "Budly." He was assigned a seat in the meeting-house in 1700. His widow and son Andrew were appointed administrators of the estate. The inventory mentions a John Burley, and he left 25 head of horned cattle, 40 sheep, 4 horse kind, timber for frame of a house, 12000 shingles, bricks, &c. His widow was published to Sergt. Caleb Kimball, 14 Apr. 1722, and died 23 Nov. 1743.

+45 Nathaniel,<sup>4</sup> b. —, d. Sanbornton 7 Feb. 1805, m. Sarah Powell, she d. about 1817. He went from Newmarket to Canterbury and thence to Sanbornton in April 1767, the third year after the first settlement. The mother rode on horseback with her two youngest children, one and a half bushels of meal, and the poultry slung over the horse's back in a straw tick, while the father with the two oldest boys drove the two cows on foot. In this style they presented themselves at a small log-cabin which had been previously built. He was a carpenter and joiner, having learned his trade in Chester. It is said that he received the fifty acres on which he located from the proprietors, as the first house carpenter in town. He was obliged to go down country the first two years for means of subsistence, at one time bringing corn meal home on his back from Deerfield, a distance of forty miles. The cows in the meantime ran in the woods, and hay was gathered from the meadow below for their winter keeping. He signed the association test in 1776, and was a highway surveyor in town as late as 1795. His descendants have been distinguished for their solid physical and superior mental endowments; his four sons at one time together weighed nine hundred pounds. (See History of Sanbornton, by Rev. M. He took an active part in the war of the revolution, and was for many years an officer in the American army. On 3 Feb. 1780, when under command of Col. Thompson, on the lines near White Plains, N. Y., he being then a lieutenant, was taken prisoner in a severe skirmish with the British troops. He was compelled to remain a prisoner for a year and nine months on his parole on Long Island, when he obtained his liberty by exchange. This long captivity at such a crisis was a severe trial to one of his active character and ardent patriotism. The last year of his captivity he was allowed the pay and rations of a captain in the continental army. He left a legacy to the town of Beverly and a similar one to his native place Ipswich. 7 April 1823, as Wm. Burley of Beverly, deceased, a native of Ipswich, has left by his will £50 of his estate, which should be paid annually for ten years, for instruction of poor children in reading and the principles of the christian religion, the inhabitants pass a vote expressive of their respect to his memory. (Felts' History of Ipswich.)

†205 John Adams,<sup>6</sup> b. 2 Jan. 1800, d. 22 Aug. 1860, m. 1st, 3 June 1829, Sarah Noble, dau. of Oliver and Sarah (Noble) Braird of Portsmouth, she b. 1805, d. 1847, m. 2d, 2 Apr. 1850, Emily Ann, dau. of Jonathan and Nancy (Marshall) Colcord, she b. 28 Mar. 1809. He was one of New Hampshire's wonderful men, who struggled to some eminence by indefatigable perseverance. In 1811 by the marriage of his sister he was left alone with his parents, who had barely enough income for their support. The mother was bent on giving the child of her old age an education, and a profession. She was not disappointed; by incessant labor, study, and teaching he prepared himself for college under Dudley Leavitt of Leavitt-almanac celebrity. About four weeks previous to the commencement of the term in which he was to begin his studies, he obtained a latin grammar and set himself at work to commit it to memory while laboring in the field. In the three weeks he had committed the entire grammar as far as prosody. On the first day of the term he was called upon to recite, the teacher standing, as was his custom. The pupil kept on until the master hearing him for forty-five minutes asked him how far he proposed to recite. "To prosody, sir," was the ready reply. "Well! well!" he replied, "I will hear the rest some other time." This untiring study until eleven at night, without recreation and exercise, to which he had been accustomed, shattered his health and deprived him of a college education, but not of a profession, to which he gave close application for five years, and was admitted to the York County Bar. He was soon able to manage the business while his brother was in Congress. In 1832 he removed to Great Falls, N. H., to add the business of Strafford county. His success attracted the attention of the Great Falls Manufacturing Co., and after being retained in many flowage cases, he was persuaded to accept the agency of that corporation. This he did very unwillingly, for he was very fond of the law, but his health demanded the change. His successful career in this agency was very gratifying. He continued in this connection from 1838 to 1860, although for four years he was totally blind, his memory enabling him to put his hand on any paper needed, and give details of business, visit places of business connected with his agency, procure statistics, dates, prices of labor, etc., all day, and keep his wife writing from his dictation all the evening without hesitation, even to dates and figures.

+475 Col. Moses,<sup>6</sup> b. Sandwich, N. H., 25 Mar. 1781, d. Linneus, Me., 13 Feb. 1860, m. Nancy Spiller. He emigrated early in life to Palmyra, Me., where his neighbors, inspired with confidence in his ability and integrity, repeatedly elected him to fill important offices in the town. He was chosen captain of the militia, and called into service in the war of 1812, marched with his company into Belfast at the time the British entered the Penobscot river to destroy the U. S. frigate Adams. He represented the town and the district in the legislatures of Massachusetts and Maine, and by appointment and election filled other offices of trust. Was a delegate to attend the convention held on the last Monday of September 1816, at the meeting-house near the college in Brunswick in the District of Maine, to form a state constitution in anticipation of a separation from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; was commissioned captain of 4th Regt., 2d Brigade, 11th Div., in 1814, and promoted lieutenant colonel in 1816. He carried the first mail by carriage from Augusta to Bangor, it having previously been carried on horseback. He removed to Linneus in the year 1830, and was appointed by the Marshal to take the census in the northern section of the county of Washington; while in that service the provincial warden, alleging that he was in disputed territory in violation of the provincial law, pursued with authority to arrest him; he eluded all pursuit and accomplished his work. In 1831 he was appointed assistant land agent to guard that section of the public lands, and in that capacity succeeded in breaking up various parties of trespassers, compelling them to return to the British Provinces. For several years he held the office of postmaster at Linneus, and was a man of activity, energy, and probity of character; his hospitality was particularly marked, the hungry were fed and the weary found rest beneath his roof. His wife d. 2 Jan. 1850, aged 64, she lived a life of usefulness, kind and beneficent, beloved and respected by her numerous friends.

710 Hon. Micajah Curreir,<sup>7</sup> b. So. Berwick, Me., 15 Jan. 1818, m. 9 Dec. 1846 Mary Frances, dau. of Dr. Richard and Sarah (Copp) Russell of Great Falls, N. H., she b. 4 Aug. 1821. At the age of twelve the family being in straitened circumstances he went to sea, when sixteen he came home and entered Strafford academy, intending to fit for college, but soon commenced teaching, and in his spare hours studying law in the office of his uncle, John A. Burleigh. Being offered extra inducements he went to sea again, and at nineteen was mate of a ship. At twenty-six while looking for a master's interest in a ship he was offered a copartnership by a merchant in his native town, which he continued two years. He then bought into the foundry business at Somersworth, N. H., had the business incorporated under the act of the legislature in 1849 under the name of the Somersworth Machine Co., and has been ever since in the management of that corporation; has been extensively engaged in building gas works in New England and the West. He has been nineteen years president of the Somersworth Savings Bank, and for a long time director in the Great Falls National Bank, and director in several manufacturing corporations. Represented Somersworth in the legislature three sessions, and was a member of the state senate in 1857 and 1858. Received the degree of A.M. at Dartmouth college in 1872. He has kept up his interest in the sea all his life; was a ship-owner through the war, and is at present owner in several large ships engaged in the East India trade. His ch., (711) William,<sup>8</sup> b. 19 Sept. 1848, d. 3 Dec. 1848, (712) Richard Russell,<sup>8</sup> b. 10 Jan. 1850, d. 5 Apr. 1850, (713) William Russell,<sup>8</sup> b. 13 Feb. 1851, m. 20 June 1878 Mary, dau. of William Lord of Montpelier, Vt., and granddau. of the late President Lord of Dartmouth college. He graduated at Dartmouth college in 1873, read law with Hon. George S. Hillard at Boston, and is now senior member of the law firm of Wells & Burleigh at Great Falls, (714) Mary Elizabeth,<sup>8</sup> b. 10 July 1853, m. 3 Oct. 1876 Charles Wright of Great Falls, (715) Micajah John,<sup>8</sup> b. 4 July 1854, d. 27 June 1855, (716) Edward Stark,<sup>8</sup> b. 2 Sept. 1855, graduated at Dartmouth College, (717) Francis Micajah,<sup>8</sup> b. 3 July 1857, d. 1 Apr. 1876, (718) Sarah Deborah,<sup>8</sup> b. 12 Jan. 1859, d. young, (719) Hattie Eastman,<sup>8</sup> b. 23 Jan. 1861, d. young, (720) Charlotte Russell,<sup>8</sup> b. 6 Sept. 1862.

724 Hon. John Holmes,<sup>7</sup> b. 7 Oct. 1822, d. 5 Dec. 1878, m. 28 Oct. 1859 Matilda Buffum of No. Berwick, Me. He received an academic education, but by necessity was compelled to go to sea at the age of sixteen. He rose from the lowest service to be master of a ship in the foreign trade, and by seven years of successful voyages accumulated a competency. In 1853 he left the sea, and after spending two years in Great Falls removed to So. Berwick, Me., and became the leading proprietor of the Newichawanich woolen mills, investing all he was worth, about $15,000. By his energy and business tact the enterprise prospered, and in 1860 the company out of their earnings were able to build some new mills, which they now occupy. Their product was about $300,000 a year, one half of which he sold himself directly to the trade, and the company early acquired a reputation for sound and durable work. The village of South Berwick and its industries owe more to his energy, capacity and public spirit than all other influences. He was president of both the national and savings banks. From being a Whig he became a Republican, and such was his popularity in his native town that he served a Democratic district in the state legislature in 1862, '64, '66 and '72. He was chosen delegate at large to attend the national convention which met at Baltimore and nominated Lincoln and Johnson. In 1872 he was elected to the 43d Congress and re-elected in 1874. He served on the naval committee during both terms, and was instrumental in perfecting the management of the Kittery Navy Yard. He was an upright, honorable man in all his business relations, and a worthy representative of that class of men whose industry, enterprise and public spirit have built up the prosperous villages of New England. He was a passable man, somewhat under six feet in height, with a round, deep chest, a square head set on broad shoulders, iron gray beard, thick white hair, dark eyes with a remarkable pleasant expression, a clear complexion and every indication of health and abounding vigor. In his native town he had no enemies and his word was as good as his bond. He was instantly killed by his horse sheering on the bridge between So. Berwick and Salmon Falls, precipitating him twenty feet on the rocks below. His ch., (725) Charles Henry,<sup>8</sup> b. 4 Dec. 1852, graduated at Dartmouth College in 1875, (726) John Micajah,<sup>8</sup> b. 24 Sept. 1854, m. When he was two years of age his parents moved to Great Falls, N. H., and he always considered himself a son of "old Somersworth," working faithfully to promote her interests for more than twenty years. He was fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter, graduated at Dartmouth College with honors in 1851, studied law with Wells & Bell, and was admitted to the Strafford Bar in 1854, becoming a partner of Nathaniel Wells, esq., of Great Falls, and buying the interest of Hon. Charles H. Bell, now of Exeter. He gave promise of rare success in his profession, and it was a source of regret to his friends when he gave up the practice and accepted the agency of the Great Falls Manufacturing Co. upon the death of his father in 1860. He had previously acted as agent while his father was traveling in Europe for his health, and during the last days of that gentleman when he was totally blind. He left a record of energy, fidelity and spotless integrity as a business man. He quickly won the respect and love of those whom he employed, and they came by hundreds to look on his face in death, and to follow him weeping to the grave. He left the impress of his active intellect and tireless industry upon the various buildings whose construction he assisted in superintending, and in many improvements around town. In 1863 and 1864 he was a representative to the legislature; in 1865 and 1866 a state senator. He was a member of the New Hampshire Historical Society and a trustee of Dartmouth College, for which institution he bore a filial regard which he amply and often testified. For several years he maintained a lectureship at his own expense which brought the students in contact with the learned mind of the historian Dr. John Lord. In 1868 he was appointed a member of the board of visitors to the United States Military Academy at West Point, a position which afforded him the keenest pleasure, and by which he became an honored and valued friend of the officers of the institution, which acquaintance was continued up to his death. He was a director in the Great Falls National Bank, a trustee of the Somersworth Savings Bank, and a director of several railroads and corporations. In 1874 he retired from the management of the manufacturing company and resumed the legal profession. He was soon reckoned one of the ablest lawyers in the state, and a brilliant ornament of the New Hampshire bar. His career was characterized in the resolutions offered by the Bar Association in memory of his death, as "by his signal ability, varied acquirements, incomparable integrity, generosity and faithfulness, rendered already eminently successful, but which gave promise of higher honors to him, a still more brilliant adornment of the profession, and a future distinguished usefulness to the community." His private life was characterized by generous, almost lavish charities; by a love of the beautiful which adorned his home with all that ministered to such taste, and a love of hospitality which cheerfully welcomed his friends; his versatile pen, his fascinating conversational powers, his mind which elsewhere has been called "a vast storehouse of learning," his great heart so tender to his family, so true to his friends, endeared him to all who knew him intimately. He was prostrated by apoplexy and paralysis for two months and died peacefully, having borne his intense suffering with heroic fortitude, supported by a firm and almost childlike faith in his Redeemer. hand in a neighboring village, then found employment with John Gove, the clothier, as a clerk ; he next opened a rope-walk at Salem, joined the M. E. church and was instrumental in building the church which now stands. In 1854 he went to Lewiston and opened a clothing store, his former employer giving him credit for his stock without security. He was soon able to clear up his indebtedness, and received John H. L. Cobb and John Y. Scruton in as partners under the firm name of Burleigh, Cobb and Scruton. After a year's business sold out his interest, was ordained a minister of the M. E. church and was stationed at Pownal, Me. His voice failing he resigned his charge and opened a flour and grain store at Lewiston. This not proving successful he went to Portland, Me., and again entered the clothing business and in three years gained a competency. In 1864 he went to Loda, subsequently to Cairo, Ill., and was largely interested in grain speculations. At the close of the war he was appointed a government inspector of cotton in Texas, leaving his family at Loda. In 1866 returned to Portland with his family, and was a traveling salesman for a wholesale clothing house in Boston. In 1867 he moved to Cliftondale, Mass., and was a real estate broker at Boston ; after two years he purchased a farm of three hundred and sixty acres at Holliston, Mass. In 1870 he returned to Portland and has since been engaged in the clothing business, at one time having the largest retail establishment in Maine. Mr. Burleigh is a powerfully built man, standing over six feet in his stockings, and weighs two hundred and twenty-five pounds, he has blue eyes, hair and full beard of gray, and an iron constitution.

medical school at Hanover, and soon after placed himself under the private instruction of the late distinguished physician and surgeon, Dr. Edmund R. Peaslee, and through his advice became a member of the University Medical college in New York city, devoting himself especially to anatomy and surgery ; thence he went into the medical department of Bowdoin college, where he was for a time demonstrator of anatomy, and from which he graduated, receiving his degree of M.D. He had already received from Dartmouth college the degree of A.B. and A.M. ; he then went, as one of the assistant physicians in the lunatic asylum, on Blackwell's island, New York. Before starting in the more active life of a physician, he decided to add to the superior instruction in surgery that he had received, by going into a school of surgery in Paris, France, and on his return to America, after ten years study, began the practice of his profession in Lawrence, Mass. He bequeathed his choice medical library to the medical department of Dartmouth college. He worked at the carpenters' trade at Lowell, Mass., went two fishing voyages out of Gloucester, went to New York, then to Philadelphia, where hearing of plenty of work and high wages at Cincinnati, he and his brother George decided to go, and arrived there in Feb. 1853 ; his brother succeeded, but he being of a roving disposition, was impelled westward. He embarked on a steamer for Fort Smith, Ark., but being taken sick with the fever and ague, he and a companion in trouble decided to return on foot. Their glowing accounts of the fine game in that region, decided his brother to accompany them and spend the winter in hunting. Arriving at Lexington, Mo., they left the steamer and proceeded to the Missouri and Kansas border, where they spent the winter among the indian nation. In the spring on their return to St. Louis they found lead in large quantities, and decided to engage in mining. In their wanderings they came to Col. Wishon's plantation, and were induced to stop and erect some buildings. In 1864 he entered the Union army, first as corporal, afterward as sergeant major of the 1st Prov. battalion of Mo. during Price's raid. After the war, he was employed to build up the depots and bridges that had been destroyed. He lives with his family at Rolla, Phelps Co., Mo. His wife's father, Col. Wishon, was b. in Surry Co., N. ## JOHN BURLEIGH GUILD.

The following acrostic to the memory of Rev. John Burleigh

Guild, a former pastor at Packerville, was prepared for the semi-centennial of that place.

Jehovah's servant, honest, true and just,
On all occasions faithful to his trust ;
He never faltered when he saw the light,
Nor shut his eyes to hide the claims of Right.

Bravely he bore him in his Master's cause,
Unchecked by flattery, or unrighteous laws,
Regardless still alike of praise or blame,
Linked to the true he ever stood the same.

Each day he sought that one day's work to do,
In all things keeping Jesus Christ in view ;
Glad to endure and bear for his dear love,
He nobly wrought below, and rests above.

Grandly he lived his fellowmen among,
Untrammelled still, till death his hand and tongue ;
In lines unfading would our love record
Least deeds or acts of his, or slightest word,
Drawn forth in honor of his risen Lord.

1853. He lost an arm while in his youth and determined to obtain a liberal education ; by dint of difficult and persevering exertion he succeeded almost unaided in fitting himself to enter college. He graduated at Yale college and was one of the most successful of classical teachers. He acted successively as preceptor of the academies of Plainfield, Woodstock and Colchester and was widely known as an accurate scholar. For over forty-five years he was deacon of the Congregational church at Plainfield, he was also among the first to advocate the abolition of slavery and to help forward other social reforms. During the last sixteen years of his life he was afflicted with total blindness arising from excessive study, and passed his last days on his farm at Plainfield.

He lectured on slavery, peace and temperance, lived successively at Plainfield, Conn., Philadelphia and Bristol, Pa., Canterbury, Conn., Vermont and Florence, Mass.; was editor of the Brooklyn Unionist, The Pennsylvania Freeman of Philadelphia; published an able argument on the death penalty, extending to quite a volume. As an extemporaneous speaker he had few equals, his language was elegant, chaste and clear, and his logic irresistible, those who assented to his premises were swept on to his conclusions by a force of reasoning that seemed to rest on the rock of eternal truth. In the long anti-slavery contest no other speaker was so universally ready in every emergency, when driven to straits by the powerful or plausible pleas of the apologist, or defenders of slavery all turned at once to him to batter down the castles of opposition and dispel

May 1863, her father was a probate judge at Stonington, m. 2d, 7 Sept. 1865 Celia M. Burr of Troy, N. Y., who was the famous lady preacher, she d. Syracuse, N. Y., July 1875. He was an earnest, conscientious, and faithful worker, and his history is the history of abolition, of temperance, and of human progress, written in characters that cannot die ; it will exert an influence for good long after he and his co-workers have passed away. Those who knew him most intimately best knew his devotion to principle, his unswerving fidelity, his inexhaustible patience. He worked on his father's farm at Plainfield, went to the district school and almost as soon as he knew how to write beguiled his leisure hours in verse making. A volume of his poems has been published, and the preface written by his wife gives a graphic sketch of the man. In 1837 he removed to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he published the Christian Witness and the Temperance Banner. In 1845 he went to Hartford, Conn., to take charge of the Christian Freeman, soon after known as the Charter Oak. In 1850 he went to Syracuse, N. Y., in the employ of the N. Y. Temperance Society where he remained five years as editor, lecturer, and corresponding secretary ; resided a short time in Albany. In 1855 he received the appointment of harbor master of N. Y. city, and was afterward one of the board of port wardens ; ch., (213) Sarah Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup>

He received a common school education, went into the American Bank Note Co. to fit for an engraver. Enlisted as a private in the 1st N. Y. Lincoln cavalry, was taken prisoner at Woodstock, Va., while on a scouting expedition and with a companion was marched to Newmarket and thence to Harrisburgh and Lexington. With nine others he was started for Andersonville with a guard of seventeen rebels; a few miles out of Lexington they captured their guard and marched them, after many trials, into Lynchburgh. He was promoted to second lieutenant; at the close of the war he was a clerk in N. Y. city. In 1867 went into journalism, and has been on the staff of the Chicago Evening Post, Brooklyn Eagle, Brooklyn Union, New York World, Times, Tribune, and is now on the Witness. He was editor and proprietor of the Northampton, Mass., Free Press, (218) Florence Hermoine,<sup>5</sup> b. 23 Sept. 1848, m. Troy, N. Y., 1868 S. H. 221 Rev. Lucian,<sup>4</sup> b. 3 Dec. 1817, m. 4 Apr. 1843 Elizabeth M., dau. of Stephen and Abigail Child of East Woodstock, Conn. He received his education mainly at the Plainfield academy and the Conn. Literary Institution and commenced teaching at an early age, working on the farm summers until 1837 when he became a christian and united with the Baptist church at No. Oxford, Mass., where he was then teaching. He afterward removed his church relations to Packerville where he was ordained to the ministry as an evangelist. Was for a considerable time principal of the Elm Grove academy at Granby, Conn. In 1841 he entered the employment of a company in Hartford to travel and exhibit a painting of the Descent from the Cross and visited many of the towns and cities of New England. In 1845 while preaching occasionally he spent some months lecturing on temperance in eastern Conn., his efforts attracted so wide attention that he was invited to New Haven county to act as agent of the temperance society which he served with zeal and energy for several years, gathering many thousand names to the pledge. In 1849 he became the agent for the American association for the suppression of gambling and continued to serve with fidelity and success till its suppression. He made a temperance tour through all the villages of Westchester county, N. Y., and the entire south-eastern portion of the state of Wisconsin, traveling 3,500 miles and filling seventy appointments to speak in thirty-six days. By the death of the teacher in his native village he was invited in 1854 to assume its duties and was soon made principal of the academy at Plainfield which he filled for five years with credit to himself and to the advantage of scores of pupils who passed under his instruction. While teaching he was preaching two or three sermons each Sabbath in an adjacent parish; after resigning his place in the academy he opened a select school of high standard and during these years of teaching he preached two and a half years at Westminster, enjoying an interesting revival, from here he was called to the Baptist church at Warrensville where the fruits of his labor were abundant. In 1865 he resigned his charge and became the agent of the Conn. Temperance Union which position he occupied until 1879; he is still preaching and working in the field of reform, living much of his time on his homestead. He is of a growing family of speakers, poets, and artists who are already widely known, the younger members of which are destined to make their mark in the future as the older members have in the past. Frank Fyler of Killingly, he was a piano tuner at Worcester, Mass. She was educated at Plainfield academy and became a teacher of marked ability; she will long be remembered for her wit and cheerfulness, and power to make all happy in her society, even on her dying bed. She died of consumption and the following lines written on her death by her uncle George S. Burleigh will for their beauty and excellence commend themselves to the family.

IN MEMORY OF ELLA.

The seasons of earth come and go
 Like a river's ceaseless flow,
 Forever here and forever there,
 Down from the hills of an unknown where,
 And away to the depths below!
 In eternal flight and eternal rest,
 Like a baby swung on its mother's breast.

Do the rivers of earth run dry,
 Or cease where they hurry by?
 Do the secret springs forget to shed
 The coolest dews of their mountain bed,

Caught fresh from the nearer sky?
 They leap in the light down their valleys green,
 They return in light through the heavens, unseen.

Ah me! could we only know,
 When our loved ones come and go!
 Soaring or sinking they rise and fall,
 Rocked on the breast of the Mother of all,
 Who carries and soothes them so.
 Should we fear when they pass, from our vision above,
 Borne in the arms of an Infinite Love?

When they sink like a vanishing wave
 To the solemn deeps that gave,
 Though lost to sight of the straining eye,
 They hover like mist in our love's blue sky
 And mellow the sharp-lined grave!
 The hot brow bared to their humid breath
 Is soothed till we could be in love with Death.

My Darling! I sit and so dream
 On the sway of the ocean stream
 Where floating but one swift year ago
 We were rocked by the same tide's ebb and flow,
 In the same sun's summer gleam!
 But the restless swing of a deeper sea
 Has caught and borne thee afar from me!

I saw thee day by day
 Drifting and drifting away,
 Till the last gleam out of thy lifted eye
 Was the purple light of another sky,
 Flashed over our dusky ray!
 Can we call thee lost, so rapt from our sight
 In the fathomless deeps of ineffable light?

Ah no! We are dim and dark;
 But thou as the morning lark
 Unseen for soaring in heaven canst rain
 Such melodies over our earthly pain
 That the dull sense whispers "Hark!"
 While the quickened soul is ravished above
 To know Death throws not a shadow on Love!

Thou, Ella, so lovely, so dear,
 So faithful and true in thy sphere,
 Worn out by an ardor of duty too strong
 For the frame it consumed as it bore thee along,

I will not believe thee less near
 Than when thy brown eyes shed laughter in mine,
 Or the pale lips of love gave their ultimate sign !

For shall He not lead to their own
 All hearts, in our lives' either zone ?
 Who clad the new Summer in green and gold,
 And led through the sky to their mountain fold
 The flocks of white billows, that down
 Ran as rill, brook and river with cataracts bound,
 Transfigured or veiled, never lost in their round !

Aye, the fingers that, dying, could trace
 Thy visions of beauty and grace,
 Shall weave us new garlands of asphodel now,
 To match the bright amaranth set on thy brow !
 The lips that breathed truth in their place,
 Shall sing the New Song with the eldest refrain,
 The Song of White Love everliving though slain !
